Soil Erosion

As a result of the heavy rain during the past month there has been considerable water erosion of the soil. Soil erosion by water is less spectacular than soil erosion by wind, however the damage wrought is usually much greater. The farmer usually does not notice his soil eroding away until gullies have started to form down through the fields. Erosion has then been going on for a considerable time in the form of sheet of rill erosion. Sheet erosion causes a more or less uniform removal of the top soil, occurring chiefly on knolls and tops of the slopes. Rill erosion is the formation of miniature gullies occurring on steeper slopes, eventually forming into gullies.

From observations made in the Municipal District of Kneehill there are a number of parcels of land that have eroded badly and conservation methods will have to be taken immediately if the productivity of the land is to be maintained.

Surface cultivation and the use of implements that will maintain a trash cover are very essential if soil erosion is to be checked.

When farmers are planning crop rotations they should include a forage crop, either grasses or legumes but preferably a mixture of both. Forage crops put fibre back into the soil, binding it together, thus preventing soil erosion.

A number of farmers burn off stubble thinking that they are destroying weed seeds. Experiments have shown that a very small number of weed seeds are destroyed by this practice. From the standpoint of erosion control the practice of burning stubble should certainly be discouraged.

Tenders Called For Gravelling Highway

The department of public works has called for tenders to gravel the Drumheller-Calgary highway. Mr. Hammill, M.L.A. informed members of the Carbon Community Club at a meeting held in the village office on Monday evening.

Tenders are being called for at once and as much of the highway as it is possible to recondition will be completed. The work will proceed from the Irricana gravel pit.

It is reported that traffic on the highway will soon be at a standstill if graveling was not proceeded with promptly.

Mr. Hammill informed the meeting that he would endeavor to have the seven miles from No. 9 highway to Carbon gravelled at the same time and have a considerable amount of repair work done on the 11 miles west on Highway No. 26.

Butter and Meat
Coupons Expire

With the invalidating of butter coupons R10 to R17 and meat coupons M40 to M50 in the hands of consumers on August 31, the Prices Board has reminded dealers in these commodities that such coupons may be used for the purchase of supplies until September 7th only. An additional seven days are being allowed in which to deposit the coupons in bank transfer vouchers.

Beaver and Buffalo coupons are not affected by the change and will continue to be valid until declared otherwise.

Panic Buying Brings Shortages

According to a recent statement by the Prices Board panic buying has caused practically every shortage in Canada during recent months.

As soon as the word "shortage" is mentioned, people all over the country rush to their nearest store and buy much more than they require for their actual needs.

Board officials point out that in one day the retail stores can be cleaned out of several months' supplies of such things as flour, salt, soap, and many other items which is in short supply. If everybody made normal purchases there would be a fair share of these items for all.

Prices Board Outlines
Flour Regulations

Following the recent announcement in parliament by acting prime minister, the Rt. Hon. St. Laurent, the Prices Board announced that the order restricting the domestic usage of wheat for human consumption to 90 percent of the consumption level of 1945 was suspended effective September 1.

This restriction order was issued on March 27, 1946, by the Canadian Wheat Board, acting in its capacity as administrator under the prices board. At the same time, related administrators' directives to flour millers and other processors of wheat and to biscuit manufacturers are also being withdrawn.

In making this announcement Donald Gordon stressed the fact that while the restriction (Continued on Back Page)

"Not Higher Prices," Says Stimpfle

With the calling of a Non Delivery strike at midnight on Friday, Sept. 6, the Alberta Farmers Union has set a precedent in the policy of farm organizations the world over.

Since its inception, this very progressive organization has had in mind the possibility of taking strike action should other means fail to gain for the farmers the proper recognition of their requests as presented by annual conventions from time to time.

However, the general trend of Canadian policy has forced the western farmers to a showdown sometime before we had expected it. It is regrettable that we have been forced to take this action at this time. However, when we sent our delegation to Ottawa to present our requests we had hoped to get at least some concessions. This, however, was not the case. Our recommendations were turned down flat. In view of this fact we have no other alternative but to call a non delivery strike and withhold our produce for thirty days, or until satisfactory negotiations have been reached.

We are asking the farmers, whether members or not, to give this strike their whole hearted support, as all will share equally in any benefits derived from our actions.

We would ask the consuming public to consider the farmers' position very carefully before directing their criticism against one group or another.

We wish to remind the public that we are not asking for higher prices for our products, but to maintain the costs of production at a level whereby the farmers can make a decent standard of living after expenses are met.

The workers and business men are asked to consider their position today if it were not for the small measure of prosperity which the farmers are now enjoying. Remember this, if the farmer is prosperous, all are prosperous.

President, A.F.U.

$1.35 For Wheat
Not Enough!

The Canadian Government today, through its Wheat Board is selling approximately half of Canada's export wheat to Britain at $1.55 basis 1 Northern Fort William, and the other half at the open market price which today is $2.05. The average price received by the Board is, therefore, at the moment, considerably more than $1.55 but the government is paying farmers only $1.35 basis 1 Northern Fort William (which means $1.17 only at the average prairie point). Canada's Foreign Trade

THE QUESTION OF INCREASING foreign trade is one of the most important matters with which Canada must deal in the post-war years. During the war, it was demonstrated that we have here the necessary requisites for great industrial development. When there was urgent need for war materials, Canadian industry was able to expand greatly to help meet these needs, and this expansion brought about a general speeding up of activity in many of the primary industries, in transportation services, and other factors associated with industrial production. During the war, when labour and material were often in short supply, this expansion was frequently beset with difficulties, but in time of peace, such a development would be of benefit to the entire country.

Faced With A Challenge Canada's Minister of Trade, Mr. MacKinnon, has drawn attention to the fact that we are now faced with a challenge to seek new markets in addition to those in the United States and Great Britain, which have been for many years the traditional outlets for Canadian goods. The Trade Minister, in a recent address before the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce at Edmonton, expressed the view that we can look to Latin America for great expansion in trade. It is apparent that there is a keen interest in those countries in developing trade with Canada and that there is a very large market there for many Canadian products. Mr. MacKinnon and other authorities have also urged that more attention be directed to markets for Canadian goods in the Orient. Japan, once a great exporting nation is not now a competitor for trade in the Pacific, and there should be many opportunities open there.

More Trade With India Records show that in 1939 exports to Australia, New Zealand, China, India and Japan formed less than ten per cent. of Canada's total export trade. During the war, trade with India increased, and there are encouraging possibilities for it to be further built up, since the resources of the two countries are not competitive. There is now also a great potential market for Canadian goods in China. It is apparent that competition for business in the post-war world is keen, but Canada has much to gain by making every effort to secure profitable outlets for her products. In the words of Mr. MacKinnon, "If Canada cannot find markets for her goods at satisfactory prices, we will at once feel the sad consequences here." Developments respecting foreign trade should be watched with interest for they may have a profound effect on Canada's future economy.

Woman Cobbler In Vancouver Would Not Do Anything Else

VANCOUVER.—Pretty Frances Chambers is a skillful cobbler and cannot understand why anyone should consider shoe-making an unusual occupation for women.

"I wouldn't change with any stenographer," she told an interviewer. "I like cobbling because it requires more talent than other occupations open to women and it enables me to meet so many people."

Mrs. Chambers started in the trade seven years ago and liked the work so well that she learned every phase of the craft. She said that she had never gouged her finger with an awl and has come to enjoy the acrid odor of hot rubber.

Her husband, whom she said she "almost married over a mended boot", is also a cobbler.

Sound Advice

Public Is Urged To Save Money For Future Use

The Bank of Montreal is putting across Canada a series of advertisements, directly addressed to the average individual earner. "Save yourself and you save Canada" is the substance of the timely admonition, which is stressed on five counts:

Hold on to your Victory Bonds.

Buy only those goods which are in fair supply and save your money for the day when goods now in short supply will be readily available.

Avoid black market purchases.

Keep up your insurance.

Build up your savings account.

"Save yourself and you save Canada" is not the council of despair. Nor is it one of futility. It is far better to have such advice now effective than to envisage the time when someone will cry out "Sauve qui peut", everybody for himself.

The Bank of Montreal counsels thrift, frugality and a little care and foresight. Such counsel can never be out of date or obsolete. The uncertainties which may lie ahead will cause no fear for those who take the advice seriously.—St. Catharines Standard.

Made A Difference

Comma Dropped When Gray's Elegy Was Printed Changed Meaning

It is strange that Thomas Gray's solemn Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard should begin with the jingling line:

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day.

As a matter of fact, most of us may recall occasions when we or others have jingled through it, quite satirically. But that important opening line of the great elegy would not have been incongruously jingled through 200 years if an anonymous proofreader in 1750 had not missed the comma which appeared in Gray's copy and which was somehow dropped in the process of printing. If one re-reads the line with the comma in its proper place, one sees at once the literary injustice inflicted by the casual and distant error:

The curfew tolls, the knell of parting day.

The significant pause banishes the jingling metre and restores the impressive solemnity at the poem's outset.—Montreal Gazette.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—Will ration books issued to new-born babies contain coupons to cover sugar for canning?

A.—If you apply for a ration book on or before October 31st, the book will contain this year's allotment of sugar-preserves coupons for canning sugar.

Q.—Are ex-servicemen given a priority suit purchase certificate? I was told the other day that these priority certificates for suits are no longer issued to ex-servicemen.

A.—All ex-servicemen receive priority suit certificates when they are discharged. After October 30, 1946, these certificates will not be issued. However, retailers and merchant tailors will be required to honor the certificates which have been issued until December 31, 1946.

Q.—When do the first ration coupons become due in ration book six?

A.—Two meat, 2 butter and 3 sugar coupons become due on September 19 and 26, these coupons to be removed from the new ration book No. 6. Anyone not obtaining their ration book at the distributing centre during the regular days set aside for the distribution of ration book six, will have to wait until after September 29 for their book, and will, therefore, find themselves unable to use the above ration coupons on the days they become due.

Q.—I am a barber in a small village. May I raise my prices for barbershop and hairdressing to meet the higher cost of living?

A.—Barbering and hairdressing are under the price ceiling. You may not raise your prices unless you obtain special permission from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlet "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book in which you keep track of your ceiling prices, mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Would Train Nurses

Must Relieve The Present Shortage Across Canada

TORONTO.—The Canadian Nurses Association at the closing session of its convention recommended that immediate steps be taken to train nurses aides to work in hospitals with a view to alleviation of the present acute shortage of nurses across Canada.

The association urged that representative committees be formed for the purpose of studying the problem. Included would be representatives of the nursing and medical professions, hospital administration and hospital associations, and provincial government departments.

The committees would make an analysis of the functions and responsibilities of the professional nurse in order that her energies "may be directed to these duties, and that duties not requiring the services of a professional nurse be directed to other workers."

Because the educational requirements for admission to schools of nursing in Canada vary in the different provinces, and the requirements of some schools do not meet university matriculation standards, the assembly urged that educational credentials of applicants be appraised by an authoritative educational body.

World's Largest Passenger Liner Will Soon Be Ready To Resume Regular Service

(Ottawa Journal)

THE greatest reconditioning job in maritime history is approaching its final stages at Southampton, England, where the Queen Elizabeth, world's largest passenger liner is being groomed to launch the career postponed by war for more than six years. Following completion on her arduous war service, the 83,673-ton vessel of the Cunard White Star line is being rapidly transformed into a new ship.

Construction work halted by the war is being completed. The grey war-paint that shrouded the ship when she slipped across the Atlantic in March, 1940, on the first of many vital war missions, has been replaced by the colors of peace—shiny black hull, gleaming white superstructure, and red and black funnels, the colors of the Cunard line. Thirty tons of paint were needed to cover the ship's million square feet of exterior surface.

Decks worn by the tramp of 811,000 pairs of military boots have been relaid. Blackout paint has been scraped off 2,000 portholes and windows. Miles of temporary wiring and piping have been dismantled. The ship has been stripped of such military appurtenances as 10,000 standee berths, temporary sanitary facilities, bulkheads, storerooms and troop fittings.

The reconversion job began immediately after the Queen Elizabeth completed her final voyage as a war transport last March 6. Some of the fittings had already been removed in New York. The remainder were taken off when the ship reached Southampton. Heavy shipyard work was carried on at the Clyde, where the ship arrived March 31. Lying at the sheltered anchorage off Gourock, the ship became a beehive of activity. During the next six weeks more than 2,000 workmen swarmed over her decks and interior. They removed the degaussing cables and supporting steel structure which had encircled the great hull. They chipped away the grey war-paint, applied an anti-corrosive composition and painted the hull anew. They recaulked and replanked acres of deck space.

Reconditioning the ship's electrical installations represented a major task. Four thousand miles of wire running through the ship had to be examined. Hundreds of electrically-operated units, such as elevators, cargo and baggage winches, capstan machinery, clocks, luminous call systems and kitchen equipment, were tested and checked.

Tons of firebrick were renewed in the twelve enormous boilers. Refrigerating and auxiliary machinery was overhauled. The 26 motor lifeboats were checked and repainted white. Ministry of Transport surveys of the lifeboats, davits, watertight and fireproof doors and other structural features of the ship were carried out. The galleys, which had prepared 22 million meals, for huge numbers of combat troops, were overhauled and restored for normal use. Pantries and service spaces, which were unfinished when the ship entered service, were completed.

While these tasks were being performed other workmen were collecting and sorting furniture and equipment at Southampton. Ordered and delivered before the advent of war, these unused furnishings and decorations had been stored in the United States, Australia and other places throughout the world. All of these fittings have now been collated. They include such items as 21,000 pieces of furniture and equipment; 4,500 settees; 4,000 mattresses and pillows; 6,000 curtains and bedspreads; 2,000 carpets; 1,500 wardrobes and dressing tables.

The Queen Elizabeth returned to Southampton on June 16. Here more than 1,000 workmen continue to apply their skills to the completion of the job. Engineers, electricians, painters, plumbers and joiners are housed at Velmore Camp, Chandlers Ford, seven miles from the ship. One hundred women polishers, engaged in putting the finishing touches to the vessel's furniture and paneling, are housed in special billets and take their meals at a former American Red Cross Club, the "Cross CanTeen", in Southampton.

As soon as the interior restoration job is completed, furniture and furnishings, including ten miles of carpets, which have been stored throughout the war, will be put on board. Decorative works of art, many of them unfinished in 1940, will be installed. This month the Queen Elizabeth will enter the King George V Graving Dock, where examination of the four propellers, each weighing 32 tons; the giant 140-ton rudder, and other underwater parts will take place.

By Fall the Queen Elizabeth, world's largest ship, and virtually a new vessel, will be ready for her maiden voyage as a passenger liner.

Britain Intends To Open Her Doors To Visitors Next Year

LONDON.—Britain proposes to open her doors to foreign tourists next year, and hopes to do business with them amounting ultimately to £100,000,000 ($400,000,000) annually, Sir Harley Shawcross has told the British Travel Association.

Before the war tourists spent £30,000,000 annually here, said the Attorney-General. Rather than cater almost exclusively for wealthy visitors requiring luxury accommodation, "we shall have to provide facilities competing with those obtainable on the Continent for visitors with a modest purse."

Deferring admission of tourists to the country until next year was also to give industry time to produce for home consumption. "We do not want to attract people to our shops if we have nothing to sell," he said. "We must not send tourists away dissatisfied."

Origin Of Ice Cream

Production Was Started First In Italy In Year 1600

Very little of the history of ice cream has been recorded but its production is said to have originated in Italy as long ago as 1600. Water ices were probably brought to France from that country about 1550 but ice cream itself evidently was not used in Paris until 1775. It appeared in England and in Germany about the same time and was advertised in New York in 1786 for the first time. Ice cream was introduced in Washington at a dinner in honor of President Jackson.—Kitchener Record.

United Nations Organization Is To Submit A Plan For A Permanent World Food Board

(By Grant Dillman)

WASHINGTON.—The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization has proposed an international ever-normal granary, declaring that the world cannot have peace and hunger too. It said the granary should be administered by a permanent world food board combining the functions of both UNRRA and the international emergency food council.

The proposed board would attempt to stabilize world food prices, channel surplus foods to needy and undernourished nations and build up food reserves sufficient to tide the world over a disastrous crop year.

In addition, it would co-operate with other international agencies such as the world bank in developing trade and industry to create buying power for food products and absorb manpower released by more efficient farming methods.

The agency said the only alternative to some plan to control surpluses and wipe out hunger "is a drift back to nationalistic policies . . . which may well be the prelude to a third world war that will end our civilization."

The board could stabilize world food prices, it said, by setting maximum and minimum prices for specific commodities based on anticipated supply and demand.

The board would buy up commodities when prices fell below the minimum and sell when they exceeded the maximum. It also would try to build up a six to 12 months food reserve to tide the world over crop failures.

The food organization said it was unable to estimate at this time how much money would be necessary for the program. But it said member nations could contribute in direct ratio to the benefits they would derive.

The board also would have some funds of its own since it would be purchasing commodities when prices were low and reselling them when prices rose.

In case production of any commodity threatened to get out of hand and destroy the world balance, the board would negotiate export quotas between the producing nations.

The food organization said the development of trade and industry must go hand-in-hand with any agricultural program because they provide the money to buy food.

"Failure to attain and maintain full industrial employment with good wages," it said, "will reduce the consumption of more expensive foods and lead to the accumulation of unmarketable surpluses of agricultural products."

BOARD OUTLINES FLOUR REGULATIONS

order is being suspended, the flour administrator will continue to supervise the distribution of flour and will partially enforce the Board regulation prohibiting conditional sales of flour to buyers of feeds.

During the period in which the ninety percent limitation order was in effect, excess inventories of flour have been used up, and complaints regarding conditional sales of flour through feed merchants have almost entirely ceased.

Mr. Gordon appealed to all persons concerned to report to the nearest office of the Board any instances of bad distribution practices of this kind to prevent any further outbreaks.

He also stated that it would be quite useless for those who are victimized in this manner to grumble about it, unless they were willing to come forward with evidence which would lead to prosecutions. The Board would be prepared to act and would provide protection to anyone who would assist in stamping out conditional sales. Moreover the flour administrator has been authorized to keep close supervision over the mills and to take all necessary steps to prevent wastage.

INFLATION is no respecter of persons. Like the rain, it falls on the just and the unjust alike.

If, through free and careless spending, inflation should descend upon Canada as it has upon many other nations, its evil would fall upon everyone.

Upon the shiftless, the thrifless, and the black market patrons . . . Yes . . .

But inflation's evil would fall equally on the "just"—those decent, honest, prudent citizens who observe the law and do not seek to satisfy selfish whims to the detriment of the community.

These, fortunately, are Canada's majority . . . these are Canada's No. 1 citizens. In their hands lies victory over inflation.

Here are their five cardinal points in personal financing:

- Hold on to Victory Bonds and Certificates.
- Buy only those goods which are in fair supply and save money for the day when goods now in short supply will be readily available.
- Avoid black market purchases.

Women's Services Operate at Full Or Over Capacity

All Salvation Army institutions under the direction of the women's social department are operating at full capacity and man year beyond normal capacity, according to Lt. Col. Hilda Aldridge, head of the department.

With demands constantly in excess of capacity many of the institutions have long waiting lists, said Miss Aldridge.

Costs for 1945 of operation and administration of the 29 institutions across Canada under Miss Aldridge's supervision were $1,746,657.95. Much of this was met by revenue from the institutions. The deficit was covered by funds by public subscription.

This year's total operating outlay will be substantially higher because of the increases in costs of commodities, service, medical supplies and staffs.

In addition, women's social service costs have been increased in recent years because of the general improvement in the standard of living in Canada. Those seeking help through Salvation Army facilities have been accustomed to more varied food and better service and surroundings than were applicants even so short a time ago as just before and early in the war, said Miss Aldridge.

Out of money subscribed by the general public in this fall's Home Front Appeal, The Salvation Army hopes to meet operating losses and expand some of its institutions to cope with the greatly increased demands. The campaign for two million dollars is to be inaugurated on September 15th.

GROWERS CAN IMPROVE METHODS

(Continued from Page One) correspondence early in the season with intending competitors showed there were many barley growers not yet aware of the essentials for malting barley as compared with ordinary or feed barley.

Another observation by those who have been closely appraising effects of the contest is that approved cultural practices are foreign to many who would be glad to grow malting barley and would welcome instructions on how to improve their methods.

THANK YOU for waiting for delivery of your NEW GENERAL MOTORS CAR

We are doing our best to see that you get your new car as quickly as possible

We want to thank every one of our customers—and every prospective customer as well—for the friendly patience with which you are awaiting your new General Motors car, whether it be a Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick or Cadillac.

That patience will be more than rewarded when we hand you the keys to one of these great new General Motors cars, for here, in our judgment are automobiles ahead of their time—far and away the best in each of their respective classes.

We know how difficult it is to wait even a day for a car of General Motors exceptionally fine quality; but we believe you will understand that we and General Motors are as eager to deliver cars as purchasers are to obtain them. Unfortunately, the cars produced so far this year are far fewer than we and the factory had counted on. General Motors headquarters at Detroit sums up the situation thus:

"Even though our rate of production normally exceeds that of any other manufacturer, we have been able to build, up to August 1, only a small percentage of the number of cars we built up to that date in 1941. Our own production, like that of the industry in general, is still far below normal, because of frequent shortages of essential materials and parts. Strike after strike at the plants of our suppliers has seriously impeded our progress toward full production, and the cumulative effect severely hampers both manufacturing and assembly."

While production is restricted, so—in proportion—are shipments of cars to us. As production increases, we are assured of getting our proportionate share of the total number of cars from the factory. But we want you to know that as quickly as these cars are received, we will speed deliveries to our customers.

We thank you, again, for your understanding and patience—confident that when your turn comes to enjoy the brilliant new standards achieved by the new General Motors cars, you will be thankful you waited.

GM-1468

Remember—Our CAR SERVICE is your best CAR-SAVER. Keep your present car in good condition until you get delivery of your new General Motors car, by bringing it to us for skilled service now and at regular intervals.

BRIEFLY TOLD

George Foster, 82, theatrical agent who gave Harry Lauder his start, died recently in London.

The Lincoln copy of Magna Carta has been installed in a one-ton safe fitted to a concrete block in Lincoln cathedral.

The South Wales and Monmouthshire Industries association will sponsor a big industrial show in London in August and September, 1947.

During the first six months of the year lifeboats in Britain were launched 266 times to help vessels and aircraft in distress and saved 381 lives.

Sir Evelyn Baring, high commissioner for Britain in South Africa, said the war office had asked for 10,000 natives for garrison duties in the Middle East.

Britain and United States will continue their wartime arrangements for the exchange of general economic information, the commerce department announced.

The south coast seaside resort of Bognor Regis, England, plans to abolish queueing for elderly people who live alone by providing voluntary helpers to shop for them.

Britain's newest battleship, the 42,500-ton Vanguard, has gone into dockyard hands at Portsmouth for an estimated six months' fitting out for next year's royal trip to South Africa.

A Free Port

No Port Must Be Subsidized Without Year Around Service

(By Jack Brayley, C.P. Staff Writer)

Just how that magic key to free commerce—the free port—applies to Canada's ocean gateways in these days of growing exports and a general disposition to knock down world trade barriers is not widely apparent.

But some ports—notably Quebec, Halifax and Saint John, N.B.—have gone on record as supporting the idea. Others, such as Montreal, Vancouver and Victoria have expressed a keen interest and, transport Minister Chevrier announced in the Commons the other day that an inter-departmental committee headed by Emile St. Laurent, vice-chairman of the National Harbor Boards, is studying briefs from several of the ports and will have a report for the next session of Parliament.

Meanwhile, Quebec has taken the lead in the agitation and is showering parliamentarians and trade boards throughout the country with dodgers urging establishment of a free zone near the old citadel.

While not so vocal, Halifax and Saint John also have made bids, the two Maritime ports have introduced a rivalry into the issue by coming out for year-round open ports—an argument which would rule out Quebec harbor, closed during winter months.

Gordon Isnor, Liberal member for Halifax, who has been following the question closely for two years, has emphasized this point. He said:

"If we are to have legislation on this matter it must apply to all ports of Canada. No port must be subsidized which cannot provide the facilities for continuous year-round service. If certain ports were used as free ports and were not open all the year it might mean that goods would be landed in American ports and brought in bond to designated Canadian free port zones and this certainly would not be desirable with ice-free ports available."

A free port, in short, is an enclosure in a protected country in which the freedom from customs restrictions allowed is valid only as long as the goods concerned are in storage therein, or are moving into foreign and not into home markets.

Free ports now are in operation in New York and New Orleans in the United States where there are no comparable regulations to the Canadian bonded warehouse system which has been described as a "junior free port".

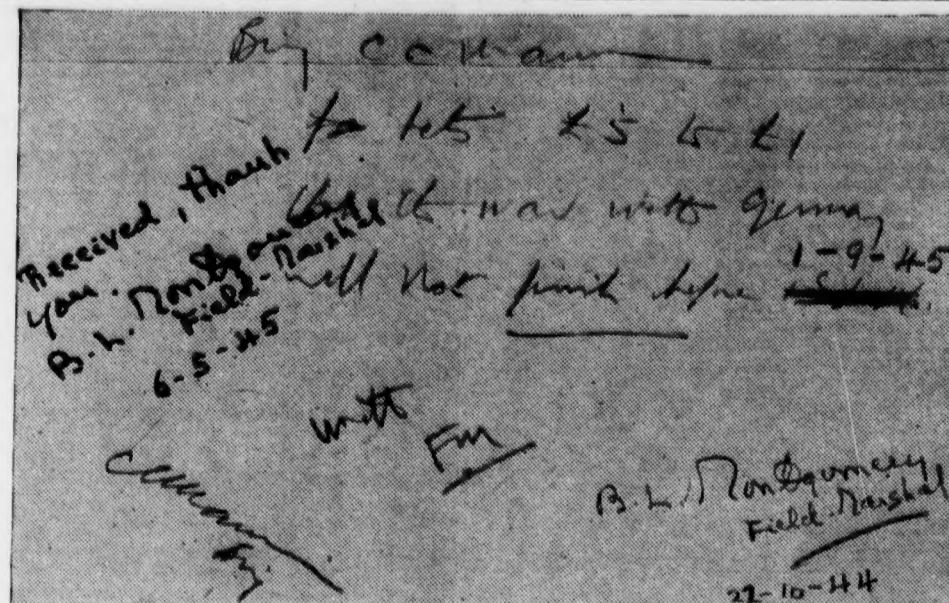

Probably the best example of the free port at its peak was Britain. In the days of free trade the whole island was a free port and the nation did an important business in trans-shipping and manufacturing for other countries.

Before the war, Hamburg, Germany, had 150 factories employing 25,000 workers in its free port zone.

PROVED TAXABLE

Michael Faraday, who invented electric-magnetism, was asked by Gladstone of what use it would be. "Some day, Mr. Chancellor, you will be able to tax it," came the reply. Faraday predicted right, and the evidence is one item on every electric light bill, says the St. Catharines Standard.

Defies Discovery

Location Of Legendary Silver Mine In Ontario Is Mystery

A silver mine of fabulous wealth is located in a cave somewhere in the Mazinaw Lake district east of Peterborough, Ontario, according to local legend. Location of the mine, it is believed, is known only to a few Indians in the district.

The legend says that many years ago a man named Meyers came to the wild area around Mazinaw Lake for his health and there became friendly with the Indians and finally was shown the cave.

The tale told by Meyers was that the silver was found in the cave in formations hanging from the ceiling. Two other white men were supposed to have been presented with silver from the cave by Indians. Today, however, the whereabouts of the legendary mine is a mystery.

KILLED MANY WORKERS

Phosphorus, once the principal ingredient of match heads, killed and maimed workers in the industry by causing necrosis, a deadly disease, until a non-poisonous match was invented.

NOT MODERN DISCOVERY

The Massai, natives of Central Africa, knew that malaria is carried by mosquitoes long before modern medicine discovered the fact. Their word for malaria, translated literally, means "I have been bitten by a mosquito."

The Mirror told how two well-known British veterinary surgeons had examined the phenomenon and had found that "Ben", boarded in Royston, near Cambridge, could say: "I want one."

Just what "Ben" wanted remained obscure, although the dog performed his trick with particular success in a tavern, the Mirror said. Now, the veterinarians were said to advise that "Ben" should be taught to say: "I want more."

SHE heard the moan as she carried the empty glass out of the ward, and she knew it was the new boy in the corner. The one with the white bandages over his eyes. She saw the pain that grooved his forehead.

Suddenly she turned and went back into the ward. She stopped beside his bed, and her "Hello?" was gentle, almost inaudible. "The doctor told me you'll be able to see," she said. "I'm happy to hear that."

A wry smile came to his lips. "Yeah, I know," he said. "But one eye! I'd have to be twice as careful. I... I wouldn't be able to play... play baseball... or football. You can't focus with one eye. You can't do lots of things. And people would stare at your back. There goes Joe Waiss. Did you see his counterpart eye. I'd rather be..." His voice trailed off.

She sat down on the edge of the bed, and touched his arm above the elbow, resting her fingers lightly, with just enough pressure. She could understand because he was so young. Nineteen, Nurse West had said.

"You don't want to give up," she said. It wasn't a routine. It sounded almost the same, but it wasn't. With each one it was different.

"Remember, there are some who lost both their eyes."

"I'm not them," he said. And they don't like it. None of 'em like it."

"No, they don't," she agreed. "But they learn to take it, without giving up. They learn to live with their minds and their bodies and forget they ever had sight, and they're happy. But you'll be different. You will still be able to see."

"Please," he begged. Don't start giving me that again. I've heard it over and over, and I'm sick!"

"I'm sorry," she said.

"I suppose, that you don't care living in a cottage—or do you? I mean near a lake, with the noises of birds and the rustle of leaves to keep you company?"

She could feel him gazing at her from the corners of his hidden eyes. His mouth, a curved wound in his tanned face, parted, closed.

"I'm sorry, she sighed. "I guess you don't care for the outdoor sort of life." She felt unhappy, and she turned away momentarily, staring at her pink fingernails. "Perhaps you... well... never went fishing. Or hunting. Never..."

"But I did," he said quickly. "I always fished. I loved it. And I loved hunting—" His voice caught. "Oh, you did? How wonderful! I did, too. I used to go fishing with my brother. Did you ever fish for pickerel?"

"Pickerel? Sure, we used to go down to Perry Lake. Jim and I. Jim was a pal of mine, a great fisherman. We used to see who'd get the biggest. Boy! Pickerel! There was a lot of 'em in Perry Lake. But what I was crazy about was spearin' for suckers. Did you ever spear for suckers?"

"Twice," she said. "But I don't care for it. I slipped on the rocks once and got soaked." "Oh, that's because you're a woman. Spearin' suckers is fun, more fun than fishin'. I got 83 one morning. I'll never forget it. Boy!" A smile brightened his face, showing his white teeth.

"Will you... let me touch your hand?" he said. She smiled. She gave him her hand. He squeezed it. "You're swell," he said. "I can talk to you—all day." "I'll be seeing you again—soon," she said.

Nurse West met her in the corridor. "Carol," she said. "The doctors were telling me about Bill. Bill Delaney. Carol's forehead puckered in frown. "You know Bill," Nurse West said. "The boy you were talking to yesterday, and the day before, and the day before that?"

They say he's completely past the critical stage. They had almost given up hope for him. You must be a saint, darling." Carol laughed. "I'm so glad. He's a nice boy. I'll go and see him."

Bill was lying with his blond head on his hands when she came in. His eyes smiled warmly, "Hello", he said.

"Hello. I heard you were better." "Lots", he said. She could see it, too.

"I was thinking," he said, rolling over onto one elbow. "You know that chicken farm idea we were talking about? You sure worked me up on it. I'm going to take it home with me when I get outa here." His expression changed slightly. "I...

Cattle Shipments

Exports From Canada During Last Year Were Heavy

More than 71,000 head of purebred dairy cattle, having an aggregate value of $11,612,955, were exported by Canada to 23 countries during 1945, the Department of Trade and Commerce has announced.

Of these 24,071, valued at $5,161,361, were classed as purebred cattle, while 47,304, valued at $6,451,594, were dairy cattle.

An additional 9,801 purebred cattle and 24,847 dairy cattle were exported during the first five months of the current calendar year.

These figures indicate the rapidity with which Canada has risen to prominence as a producer of breeding stock as in 1930 only 3,017 purebred cattle valued at $602,689 were exported. Shipments of dairy cattle to other countries fifteen years ago totalled only 9,257, valued at $890,687.

A total of 3,470 purebred sheep, valued at $93,163 were also exported in 1945 as were 852 purebred swine, valued at $33,520; 26,650 purebred poultry, valued at $61,879; and 848,880 baby chicks, valued at $115,218.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

withholding 20 cents or more a bushel from farmers for a period of five years when farmers will be entitled to a participation payment: always provided, of course, there are any profits left at the end of that time.

I myself can see no reason for the withholding of such a large sum as 20 cents or more a bushel from farmers for five years. Farmers will soon have considerable expenses to meet, new machinery to purchase, painting and repairing of homes and buildings and new clothes to buy for themselves and their families. That 20 cents a bushel now withheld, would go a long way to meet these necessary expenses. Twenty cents a bushel. I suggest, therefore, is of more value now in the pockets of farmers than it is resting in the Treasury at Ottawa for five long years.
